

Decision-making timeframes for marine consents

August 2018

When we receive an application for a marine consent, the timeframe for processing it and making a decision is set out under New Zealand law. These diagrams show how long the process takes.

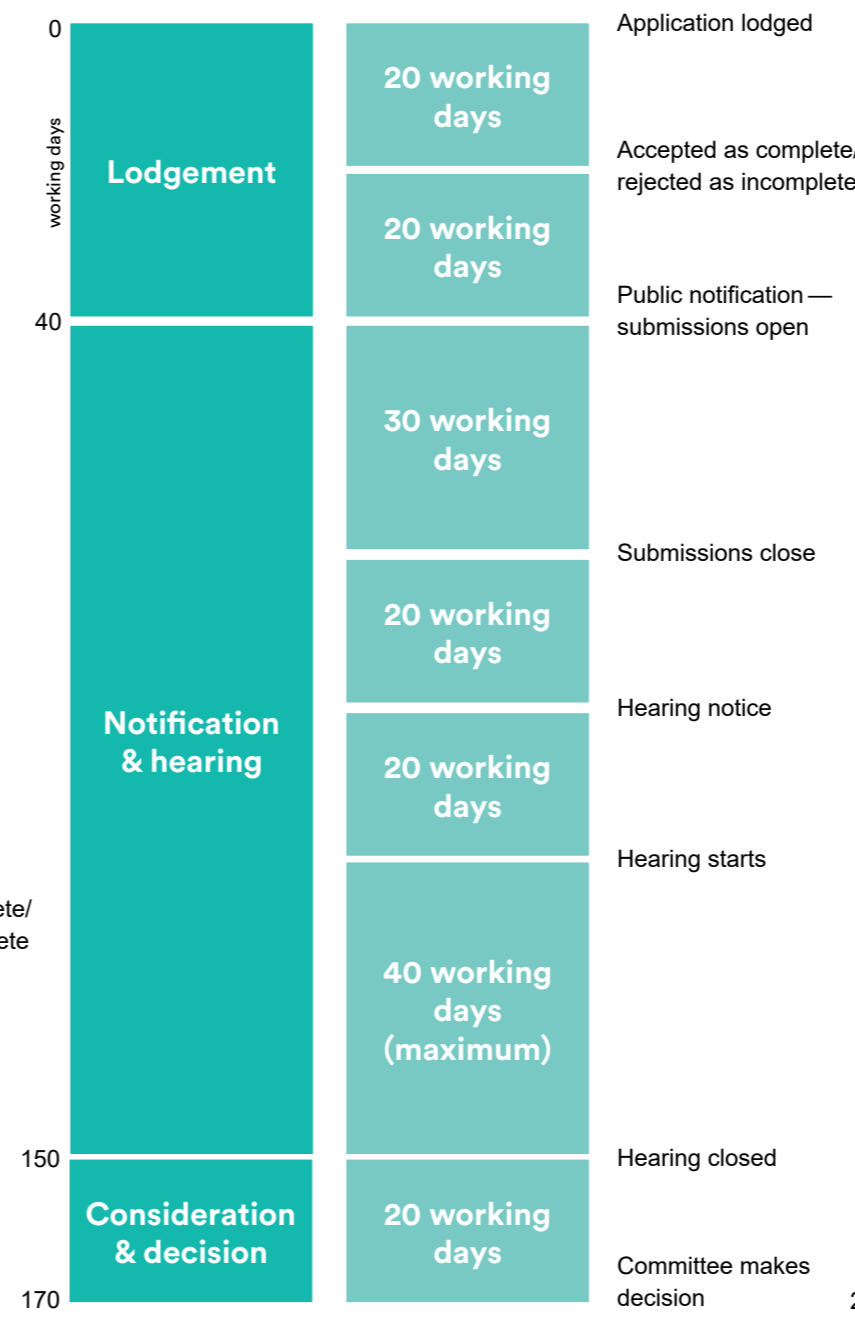

All marine consent decisions can be appealed on points of law at the High Court.

Timeframe for applications where the public is not notified

Timeframe for applications where the public is notified, where the decision maker is an EPA-appointed committee

Activities restricted by NZ law except those in section 20 of the EEZ Act.

Timeframe for applications where the public is notified, where the decision maker is an independent board of inquiry

Publicly-notifiable activities listed in section 20 of the EEZ Act
